

Acknowledgements

I would have not been able to write this book without having first experienced the caesareans that delivered my two gorgeous girls. Their births were wonderful, truly inspiring and only a little scary.

A special thanks to my husband Simon who has had infinite patience with me and been a real link to sanity throughout my pregnancies and in the six years since.

Thanks too to all those people I interviewed, mums, dads and practitioners, who provided information and many more ideas about how to personalise, prepare for and recover from a caesarean, planned or otherwise.

Thanks to my parents Carol and Don who read the initial huge draft and all those who helped further refine it: Haley Cooper, Isabel Hogan, Linda Buxton, and those professionals who checked all the medical content. Thanks to my sister Alison whose enthusiasm for this project and faith in me has spurred me on and to Anne Ng whose idea it was to turn research for my own birth into a book to help others.
